What does Sanaa stand for?

SANAA (Sejima and Nishizawa and Associates) is a multiple award-winning architectural firm based in Tokyo, Japan. It was founded in 1995 by architects Kazuyo Sejima (1956) and Ryue Nishizawa (1966), who were awarded the Pritzker Prize in 2010.

Why did Sanaa have a glass pavilion?

In the Glass Pavilion we did for the Toledo Museum of Art in Ohio, we had more freedom, because the space is mainly for exhibiting glass works. So that meant we could think of the museum itself as part of the exhibition. View of SANAA's New Museum of Contemporary Art, 2007, New York. Photo: Iwan Baan.
